

Milton Erickson

Psychiatrist Dr. Milton Erickson M.D. was regarded as one of the most effective medical hypnotists in the history of the United States, and was one of the exemplars of excellence modelled by Dr. John Grinder Ph.D and Dr. Richard Bandler Ph.D. as they developed NLP.

Much of Erickson's impact was due to his vocal variability and his linguistic virtuosity. Dr Erickson used imprecise language with extraordinary precision, paid minute attention to the human behaviour of communication and always put himself in exquisite rapport with others. You will learn the range of precise imprecision, how to construct sentences with multiple meanings, how to communicate more universally, how to pay attention to what Erickson attended to, how to utilize advanced rapport skills, and explore how you can communicate even more pervasively and flexibly with the unconscious.

Virginia Satir

Virginia Satir was widely regarded as the greatest family therapist of her time. A practitioner of great energy and unbounded generosity she attended to her clients with compassion, believed that people's behaviour was driven by positive intentions and always focussed on future possibilities rather than past problems. She drew her clients to participate in practical physical exercises to demonstrate processes they were experiencing. She believed that to change physical position is to change experience. Modelled at the genesis of NLP, Virginia Satir was the epitome of rapport, connecting with others easily and was continually flexible, learning from responses to move towards what was working.

You will learn how to flex your abilities and use the physical processes that Virginia Satir found to be so powerful. You will also learn how to more faithfully model and replicate a wider range of the skills of these two great communicators and add them to your NLP repertoire.
